

ACRYLICLEAR UNDERWATER SURFACE RESTORATION

There is no need to go through the expense and hassle of catching and removing your livestock, bracing viewing panels, draining water and recycling your aquarium. With our Acryliclear underwater surface restoral process scratches can be removed without moving anybody out. In the past all large custom aquariums, exhibits in both public zoos and aquariums, and all underwater windows that were in need of restoration work had to be emptied and sometimes resealed to be restored. This added a large additional expense to a project that can now be performed in less time with less expense and less stress to the livestock that will stay home while the work is done. Our staff or any of our authorized licensees can travel to your location and restore you panels.
